Celebrate Artown's sweet sixteenth

ARTOWN HAS AN AMAZING STORY TO TELL. As we enter our 16th year, we're at a different place than we've previously been. Artown is constantly evolving. We push boundaries with the performances and acts we bring; one look at the World Music Series shows that with its global presence and outreach.

This year more than ever, Artown's participating artists have really taken ownership and are taking us to an entirely new level with performances and exhibits designed to engage, challenge and inspire. Local artists are a vital component to Artown and have contributed to the festival since day one. Our July calendar is bubbling over with local talent inspiring an excitement and energy that's just spectacular.

Stretching to 32 days beginning with Opening Night June 30 and concluding July 31, Artown is reinventing itself yet again for its "sweet 16" with new performances, dynamic artist influences, unique events, expanded outreach outside the Reno city limits and nearly 400 choices.

The arts are essential to any community and when you set aside a weekend, or a week, or as is Artown's case an entire month, just to focus on the arts, we view it as our mission to provide value and a respite for people seeking to be entertained. And this July will do just that with a mix of local, national and international talent in a variety of art forms along with events that are free or low-cost at several locations.

The festival's free events, a cornerstone of the month's festivities, continue to attract thousands with a mix of local, national and international talent and family-friendly fare. Series during the month include the World Music Series, Family Series, Monday Night Music Series, Dancing in the Park and Movies in the Park. Discover the Arts remains a mainstay for children

6 to 12 introducing theater, dance, music, poetry and visual arts with workshops and performances each weekday in July.

It's going to be one incredible month and we hope you join us for one or many performances and events.

We'll see you in the park.

Reno becomes artown

this July | THIRTY-TWO DAYS OF ART
FROM EVERY ANGLE

STEPHEN
PETRONIO'S
"UNDERLAND"

8PM July 30 • Grand
Sierra Resort • $30 - $50

Dancers hurl through space with razor-sharp precision in "UNDERLAND," with music and lyrics from Nick Cave's "Murder Ballads."

This performance is rated for mature audiences, ages 18 plus for language and adult themes.

WHEN GIANT PUPPETS, DRUMMERS ON STILTS AND AFROBEAT MASTERS make an appearance in Reno, you can bet it's July and our town has become Artown. This annual celebration of the arts opens Thursday, June 30, and goes nonstop until closing night Sunday, July 31.

"Artown is a coming together of the community to celebrate the arts," says Beth Macmillan, executive director of Artown. "The sheer variety of our events ensures that everyone — from different age groups to different cultures — can connect with this festival."

One festival highlight will be Fourth of July at Hawkins Amphitheater. That evening, Pink Martini — a "little orchestra" that crosses genres and cultures — will perform, along with MarchFourth Marching Band.

"It will be an incredible way to spend the Fourth of July," Macmillan says.

Collaborative musical performances highlight the festival mid-July, first with Doc Severinsen and the San Miguel Five. Severinsen, along with world-class guitarist Gil Gutierrez and three other musicians, mix guitar and trumpet for Latin, Afro-Latin and gypsy jazz.

Neo-soul diva India.Arie hits the stage two days later with Israeli musical icon Idan Raichel with their Open Door collaboration. Combining passionate R&B and pop in an East-meets-West experience, the show was a late addition to the festival but has generated a lot of buzz. ▶

PINK MARTINI

8PM July 4 • Robert Z. Hawkins Amphitheater
• $45 - $75

Celebrate July 4th with Pink Martini, the "little orchestra" that's big on sophistication and style with a world-wide repertoire that crosses genres of classical, jazz and old-fashioned pop. Festival favorite MarchFourth Marching Band opens with its signature wacky style.

ARTOWN OVERVIEW

PERLA BATALLA

7:30PM June 30 •
Wingfield Park • Free

A rich voice and poetic lyrics set Grammy-nominated singer and songwriter Perla Batalla apart from the rest. The world-class vocalist uses her Mexican-American roots to combine Mexican, Latin American and Mestiza music for a performance full of rhythm and pure joy.

"Artistic collaborations are so inspiring, often bringing together diverse artists for a soul-stirring performance. These performances will certainly stir the soul," Macmillan said.

During the month of July, Artown also caters to its younger audiences with the Family Series, which will include the beloved larger-than-life Hudson Vagabond Puppets, performing the Beatrix Potter tale "Jemima the Puddle-Duck."

Bringing Home the Arts

There is one stage that is the Met and Carnegie Hall. It's the Kennedy Center and a club in Austin. It's closer than any seat in the house - no matter where you call home.

KNPB, the great American stage, that fits in every living room, is proud to support Artown.

INDIA.ARIE AND IDAN RAICHEL

8PM July 19 • Robert Z. Hawkins • $25 - $35

"Open Door" is a stunning collaboration between the incomparable neo-soul diva India.Arie with Israeli superstar Idan Raichel. The pair creates a cross-genre collection of songs that are poignantly relevant to a global audience.

PLAYING FOR CHANGE

7:30PM July 31 • Wingfield Park • Free

Sharing peace through music, Playing For Change is a global music collective bringing musicians from around the world together for an inspirational live performance.

Not complete without a stunning display of dance, this year's Artown lineup features New York City's Stephen Petronio Company in "Underland" with music and lyrics by Nick Cave's "Murder Ballads" at Grand Sierra Resort.

The 32-day festival will close on a wonderful note, when global music collective Playing For Change performs in Wingfield Park. This group of musicians from around the world is on a mission to spread peace through music, from blues and funk to jazz and reggae, with all sorts of sounds in between. The performance takes place the same day as Tour de Nez's final day.

According to Macmillan, Artown continues to stretch further into the community — both geographically and demographically — with the help of local artists and presenters.

"They're helping different segments of our community experience art," Macmillan says. "The local artists are making that happen, and Artown is the vehicle." ■

TAKE A FREE TRIP AROUND THE GLOBE WITHOUT EVER LEAVING RENO. During Artown's World Music Series, which takes place each Wednesday in July, audiences get a vivid glimpse into faraway places from Honduras to Africa.

"We bring different corners of the world right here to Wingfield Park," says Beth Macmillan, executive director of Artown. "When you discover a culture artistically, you get a snapshot into that culture as a whole."

This year, the World Music Series will include sounds from Nigeria, Honduras, Hawaii and the exotic bayous of Louisiana.

"There's a hunger for world music here in Reno," says Mark Simon, who provides technical support for the World Music Series. "It's something different that you'd usually have to go to that country in order to experience."

STEVE RILEY AND THE MAMOU PLAYBOYS

"For a couple hours," she says, "we can escape mass-media music and experience something unique in such a gorgeous setting." ■

NATIVE NEVADAN SEES BEAUTY BENEATH THE SURFACE

ARTOWN'S OFFICIAL POSTER FOR 2011 IS NEVADA THROUGH AND THROUGH — created by a Reno native, the work reflects the rich diversity that lies beneath an austere landscape.

Artist Kelly Peyton, 23, graduated from the University of Nevada, Reno in May with a bachelor of fine arts degree. She was selected from among more than a dozen artists to create the poster that will represent Artown on marketing materials and be seen throughout the community, and beyond.

"I love Nevada, and I love Reno, and I was just really excited to be representing that," Peyton says of receiving the commission.

The work — an unassuming sagebrush whose roots entwine a joyous profusion of color and organic form — is symbolic of the Silver State, she says.

"The sagebrush is a traditional view of Nevada — a dry plant, outsiders don't really see the beauty of it," Peyton says. "Underneath the surface it's like the beauty of Nevada, you have to dig for it to understand the culture beneath the surface."

For Artown Executive Director Beth Macmillan, the image speaks to the deep roots the arts have in Reno.

"It just seemed to match what happens to the arts in this community," she says. "It comes from within and it bubbles to the surface." ■

Trees do more than beautify our world. They help clean the air of carbon dioxide – a major greenhouse gas. As North America's largest recycler, we're ensuring that more trees can keep up the good work. And with thousands of commercial and community recycling programs nationwide, the results are truly adding up.

There's more to think about at ThinkGreen.com

From everyday collection to environmental protection, Think Green. Think Waste Management.

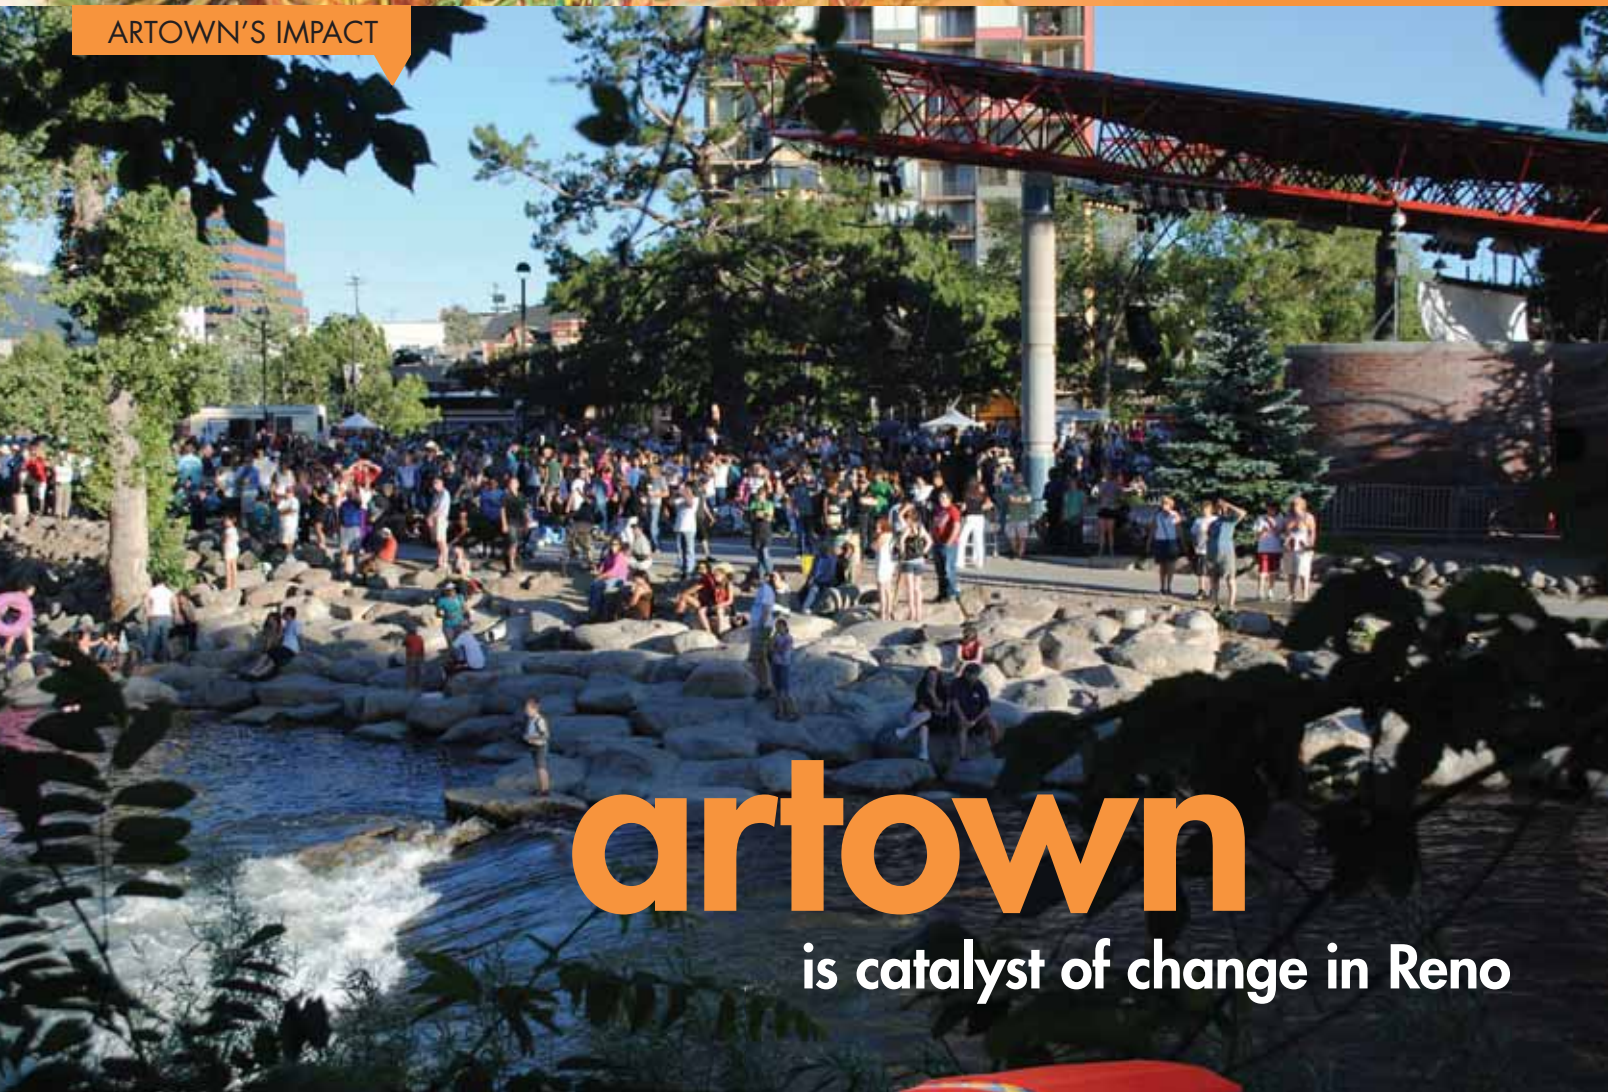

©2011 Waste Management, Inc.

Waste Management is the industry leader in environmental services, and the largest recycler in North America.

While we are currently providing local recycling services, Waste Management recognizes the need for an improved, comprehensive recycling program in the Greater Truckee Meadows. We are currently working with local officials to define and develop an enhanced curbside recycling program for residents that would include a single-stream system, relieving residents of sorting their individual recycling materials. This enhanced program would allow us to pull more material from the waste stream, and increase local recycling!

Waste Management strives to be a trusted and valued community partner, and we are interested in your input on an enhanced program. If you would like to join Waste Management's electronic mailing list for program updates, information on free dump events, service alerts, etc., please call (866) 844-1508 and a customer service representative would be happy to update your contact information.

For more information on Waste Management's local services, please visit www.wm.com or call (866) 844-1508.

is catalyst of change in Reno

ARTOWN STARTED SOMETHING BIG IN 1996 when its creators decided an arts festival could bring people to Reno's struggling downtown.

Before Artown, locals just didn't come downtown, says Executive Director Beth Macmillan.

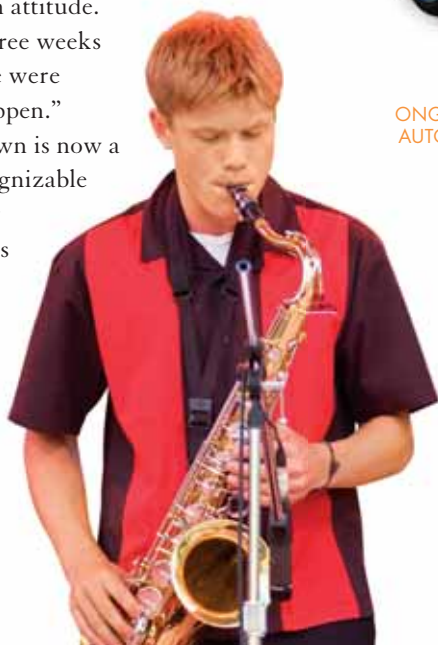

"Everybody said that's not the center of the city," Macmillan says of locals' pre-Artown attitude. "Well, they put this festival on for three weeks and 30,000 people showed up. People were hungry for something like this to happen."

Sixteen years later, Reno's downtown is now a vibrant city center practically unrecognizable from those earlier days. Artown now brings in more than 300,000 attendees during the month of July. Nearby, families now play in the Truckee River — an activity that was illegal when Artown started — and take in a ballgame at the $50 million Aces Stadium. What was once a shuttered casino is now luxury condominiums.

“Artown was the change agent, where businesses realized that people will come back downtown,” Macmillan says.

“In talking to the developers of the Montage, one of the reasons they liked Reno was Artown,” says Dave Aiazzi, Reno City Councilman and Artown board member. The high-rise condo developers saw that people would go — and live — downtown. “People were going down there in summer to Wingfield Park.”

Local restaurateur Jack Lyons and his partner Josh Polon, owners of Men Wielding Fire, have been providing food for Artown concerts and special events for six years. The positive exposure helped grow their catering business, Lyons says, and now, the two have opened a restaurant at 180 E. First St.

“We’ve been a big supporter of Artown, and they’ve really helped us out,” Lyons says.

Word of Artown’s impact has spread far beyond the borders of the Truckee Meadows. The National Endowment for the Arts included Artown in its 2010 guide, highlighting the festival’s $12 million economic impact through dining, shopping, hotel, gaming and entertainment expenditures.

“Artown started for our own community in our backyard, but tourism has followed,” Macmillan says. “It’s really helped with rebranding Reno. People are coming here for the arts.” ■

Yo-Yo Ma tops season lineup

NOW ENTERING ITS THIRD SEASON, Encore is keeping Artown top-of-mind year round.

Encore will present world-renowned cellist Yo-Yo Ma and pianist Kathryn Stott performing with the Brazilian guitar rhythms of the Assad Brothers, April 26, 2012 at the Grand Sierra Resort Grand Theatre.

"There were artists not around in July we'd love to have come," Executive Director Beth Macmillan says of Encore's origins. Now, Artown brings in performers from September through May, making the festival a nearly year-round experience.

The Yo-Yo Ma performance caps a long effort to bring the cellist to Reno.

"I've been working on securing Yo-Yo Ma for two or three years," Macmillan says.

Dave Aiazzi, Reno city councilman and Artown board member, credits Macmillan's work to spread the word of Reno as an arts destination for securing Ma.

"Because of the work she's done in the past years, it makes artists think Reno is a place to stop," Aiazzi says. "I'm very proud Reno is a place he (Ma) would like to perform. The people in Reno deserve to see Yo-Yo Ma." ■
